A better society life through more green and community spaces

As the community population growth day by day, the needed of places to stay and for other purposes of living are growth. This condition brings the land getting more and more limited and exclusive. The living in city area are predominantly occupied with high-rise apartments that as the time goes by provide more less area for the unit space. The needed of a new living that maximized its functionality are significant to address this issue. In this case, affordable houses are one of the ways to solve this problem.

Through the concept of minimized space that providing livings with more efficiency in terms of the space dimension while on the same time maximize its functionality, will provide more spaces of the land area for other functions, such as green area and public area. This more public space for the entire community and several different functions enable society to interact more within each other. This new environment that designer provides will promote a better life for the community. As such, the current lifestyle of the city society that tends to be more selfish and independent will be changed and renewed. The criminal conditions that increase lately in Sydney could be reduce through society's solidarity. Furthermore, the increase quantity of green spaces that it offers will provide a better natural environment, which will bring a healthier life for the society. Therefore, spaces efficiency for the private living could offer better public spaces in order to create a better society life.
